

- années de lutttes, de rires et de combats." Les Sorcières 3 (2003): 16. Print.
- Milstein, Cindy. Anarchism and Its Aspirations. Oakland: AK Press, 2010. Print.
- Nathalie and Tasha's Fantastical Anti-Oppression Workshop. Montreal: QPIRG Concordia, nd.
- Prashad, Vijay. Keeping up with the dow joneses: debt, prison, workfare. Cambridge, MA: South End Press, 2003. Print.
- Pucciarelli, Mimmo. L'imaginaire des libertaires aujourd'hui. Lyon: Atelier de creation libertaire, 1999. Print.
- Rosavallon, Pierre. L'Âge de l'autogestion. Paris: Seuil, 1976. Print.
- Whittier, Nancy. "Political Generations, Micro-Cohorts and the Transformation of Social Movements." American Sociological Review 62.5 (1997): 760-778. Print.

KAY R. EGINTON

Early Morning, and the Sun

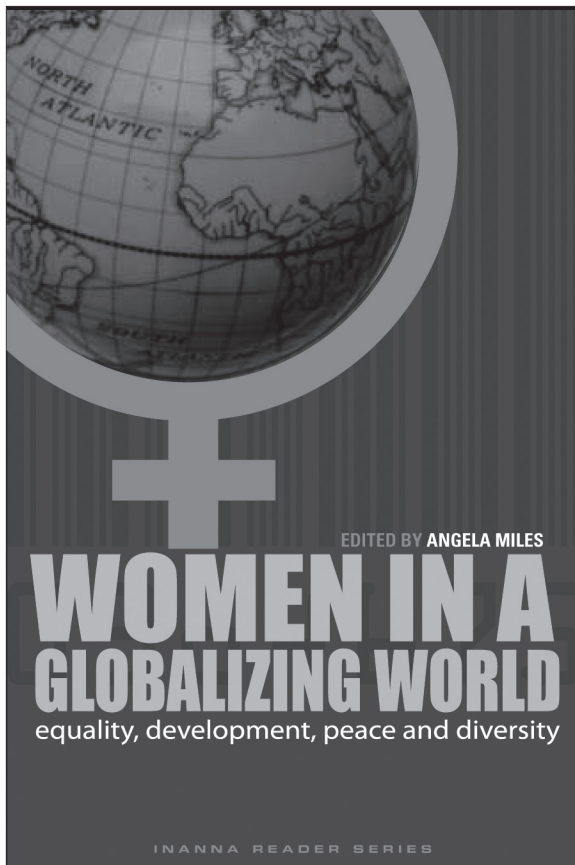

Another time, another place
The window bleary
Like early morning here
Sunlight struggling for recognition

As we do now, we've aged.
It's three years down the road
We've traveled on the old dirt road
Found a home here

But not the end of the beginning
We've just come to the end
and an old stop sign
Bent by an errant driver.

We're no wiser than before
Only illuminated
By an aging sun.

Kay R. Eginton's poetry appears earlier in this volume.

FALL 2012
INANNA PUBLICATIONS

Women in a Globalizing World
Equality, Development, Peace and Diversity
edited by Angela Miles

Articles by formative researchers in key areas with historically-specific reflections and analyses of Canadian and other feminist activists as they first face, come to understand, and learn to address (with their sisters around the world) emerging neo-liberalism's impacts on women. Uniquely situates current theory and activism in a rare historically-contextualized account of Canadian and global feminisms' deepening engagement with these issues.

www.inanna.ca
inanna.publications@inanna.ca

Smart books for people who want to read and think about real women's lives.