

and Indigenous organization to hold the Canadian mining industry to account..

<sup>1</sup>Stephens and Ahern's literature review found 20 studies with reference to dust effects from open cast mines.

References

- Archibald, Linda and Mary Crnkovich. If Gender Mattered: A Case Study of Inuit Women, Land Claims and the Voisey's Bay Nickel Project. Ottawa: Status of Women Canada, 1999.
- Environmental Defence Canada. Make Inco Clean Up Port Colborne Neighbourhood. Ottawa, April 23, 2003.
- Environmental Mining Council of British Columbia. Online: www.emcbc.org
- Hartwell, T. D. and R. W. Handy. "Heavy Metal Exposure in Populations Living Around Zinc and Copper Smelters." Arch Environemtnal Health 38 (5) (1983): 284-295.
- Jacobsen, H. and D. Ellis. Women in Single Industry Towns. Vancouver: Women's Resource Centre, 1979.
- Koike, S. "Health Effects of Non-Occupational Exposure to Asbestos." Sangyo Igaku 34 (3): 205-15.
- Mergler, D. Integrating Human Health Into an Ecosystem Approach: A Model for Studying the Impact of Mining Activities. CINBOISE, 2000.
- Stephens, C. and M. Ahern. Worker and Community Health Impacts Related to Mining Operations Internationally: A Rapid Review of the Literature. London: London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, 2001.
- Sudbury Soil Study*. 2003.
- Yukon Conservation Society. Gaining Ground: Women Mining and the Environment. Whitehorse: Yukon Conservation Society, 2002.
- Weitzner, Viviane. Through Indigenous Eyes: Toward Appropriate Decision-Making Processes Regarding Mining On or Near Ancestral Lands. Ottawa: North South Institute, 2001.

IRENE GOLAS

She lost

the baby, they said.	stray dog from the pound.
like it was a glove lost on a bus, a two-dollar bet	she lost the baby, they said.
at the track, a coin in a defective candy machine.	as if she misread the owner's manual, miscalculated the formula, botched the process of gestation.
she lost the baby, they said.	she lost the baby, they said.
as if it could be found again, like a misplaced set of keys, replaced like a mislaid pencil, retrieved like a	as if her heart was not a ragged wound still beating without reason.

Irene Golas is a Sudbury librarian and mother of two boys. She organizes "Our Own Soiree", a monthly celebration of the spoken and sung word by Sudbury writers and performers.